"Atomos Hyla" is born!

Genoa, May 3rd, 2019 - By the aggregation of Atomos FT, Hyla Soft and Sintec Atomos Hyla is born, which consolidates experience and expertise for the provision of consultancy services and technological solutions for manufacturing companies in the Supply Chain and Operations fields.

Atomos FT was founded in 1990, afterwards called Nicim, with the aim of developing and distributing a software suite for production management, implementing programming, scheduling and production advancement solutions.

Hyla Soft is a company specialized in end-to-end consultancy services and technological solutions for the productivity and efficiencies of Sales & Operation Planning and Manufacturing Operations processes with a history that begins in the early 2000s.

Sintec was founded in 1992 by the enthusiasm and willingness of a group of technicians who worked for years in the field of automation and process control.

The new company is composed by more than 130 consultants with operating offices in Genoa, Savona, Turin, Verona, Naples, Milan and Bologna and more than a thousand projects executed successfully and implemented in different industrial sectors.

"With the creation of Atomos Hyla we give life to a new reality where we merge all the experiences acquired in the Supply Chain, production management and industrial automation sectors - declares Claudio Zilich, CEO of Atomos Hyla. In an increasingly integrated world, the manufacturing sector is being transformed; the companies seek a greater connection with production chains upstream and downstream and an optimization of productive assets with the aim of improving their competitiveness both in terms of production efficiency and adaptation to variability in customer demand. This new business reality will make available to our customers skills and experiences to meet their needs in order to rethink their business models and approach to the market."
